Can you make people laugh and make your point at the same time? Laura Pulfer's fans think she can. The popular newspaper columnist and radio commentator has become well-known for the punches she does not pull. "My job is to get people to think about important political shenanigans and sex scandals of all kinds, not to mention crime, urban blight, the crisis in our public schools and bad movies. But most people are just like me-thinking instead about all the plans elected officials have for our personal money and why food tastes like kitty litter seems to be the only thing us and certain death." 232 pages, Hardcover.
