Da terra à lua (Portuguese Edition) Jules Verne

Da Terra à Lua (no original em francês De la Terre à la Lune) é um livro do escritor francês Júlio Verne, publicado em 1865.

Conta a saga do Gun Club (Clube do Canhão), uma organização americana especializada em armas de fogo, canhões e balística em geral, e da ideia de seus membros em construir um enorme canhão para arremessar um projétil de forma cilindro-cônica à Lua .

Um aventureiro francês chamado Michel Ardan, de modos extravagantes, propõe que o projétil lançado seja tripulado e se apresenta como candidato a "astronauta". Depois desta surpreendente proposta, dois dos membros do "Gun Club" também embarcam nesta "loucura". Para que este empreendimento se realizasse, foram construídos um canhão, uma bala oca, e um telescópio, todos de dimensões impensáveis, a quantidade de pólvora usada também era de volumes impensáveis.

Depois de disparada, a bala quando se aproximou da Lua, em vez de alunissar (pousar em solo lunar), entrou em órbita da própria lua. Os três passageiros apenas tinham mantimentos para 3 meses, ficando a saga em aberto. O futuro dos três astronautas, é descrito na obra À roda da Lua.
